What technologies exist to help youth with epilepsy self-manage?
This largely depends on what the patient needs in order to be able to self-manage. For example, some technologies may help to keep track of seizures, provide medication reminders, and other ways to support self-management.

- Project YESS! website is being developed for youth to be able to share experiences with peers and providers.