Practicing Safety Timer

This tool can be given out to parents on an as-needed basis. The timer can allow for a few minutes to deal with stress in various situations. When used as a tool for effective discipline, the timer can help to structure time-out periods (removal of positive parental attention). Set the timer for one minute per year of age. It may be beneficial to show parents how to set the timer in the office, so you know they understand how to use it.
