Newly Integrated Academy Web Sites

Over the last several months, we have provided you with emails to help you get familiar with the redesigned AAP.org Web site. Given the positive comments and requests to integrate more Academy content into AAP.org, we are proud to share the recently integrated Committee, Council, Section and Health Initiative sites. This month, we are highlighting the following resources that were specifically designed for you.

- Medical Home for Children Exposed to Violence - Provides resources to help practices modify operations so that clinicians can more effectively identify, treat, and refer children and youth who have been exposed to or victimized by violence.
- Healthy Active Living Right From the Start: Implementation Guide - Through a member needs assessment, you told us that you needed more help dialoguing with families of young children about obesity prevention. This resource was developed to help you!
- Are you a member of any of these sections? Do you have an interest in these areas? Visit these newly updated and redesigned sites for resources as well as membership criteria.
  - Section on Hospital Medicine
  - Section on Hematology/Oncology
  - Section on Young Physicians

This is just the beginning. Next month, watch for newly developed or redesigned Disaster Preparedness, Mental Health, and Early Brain and Child Development sites.

Innovation Comes to the Quality Improvement Innovation Networks (QuIIN)

New Network....New Web site

QuIIN now serves as home to multiple pediatric quality improvement networks designed to improve care for children.

Quick Links

- Member Directory
- Staff Directory

Highlight

Do you need updated prescribing information? Did you know the editors of the 2012-2013 Nelson's Pediatric Antimicrobial Therapy, 19th Edition provide a monthly update? Visit this Web site for instant access to expert, up-to-date recommendations for the treatment of infectious diseases in children. and their families in both the inpatient and outpatient settings. Currently housed within QuIN are the Practice Improvement Network (PIN) and the newest network, the Value in Inpatient Pediatrics Network (VIP).

Be sure to visit the Help Page on AAP.org for a list of commonly asked questions as well as past issues of this monthly newsletter.