Donated Books
A successful way to fill your waiting room with children’s books and encourage community involvement is to ask for donated children’s books. Parents are delighted to find a place to bring books their children have outgrown. Service organizations and young adults seeking volunteer opportunities only need to be made aware of your clinic’s need for books. Check the front of your local phone book for a listing of service organizations in your own community.

Below is a handout on how to conduct a book drive with a downloadable sign:

-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Book Donation Handout

is happy to accept used and new children’s books for use in a pediatric clinic. We hope that you assist us in ensuring the children in our community have books in their homes.

New Books: donations of new books for all ages of children are very welcome.

Used Books: Used books are also put out in the waiting area and in the exam rooms so that adults and children can have the opportunity to read and enjoy books together.

Used books are welcome but we respectfully request that:

- Should be gently used (covers and pages intact, clean and readable)
- Books for the following age groups: infants up to and including teenagers
- No textbooks please
- No used coloring or activity books

Contact Person: ________________________________________
Practice: ______________________________________________
Address: ______________________________________________
Address: ______________________________________________
City: ___________ State: _______ Zip: ________________
Phone: ______________________________________________
Email: _______________________________________________
A pediatric practice,

needs new and gently used books for children of all ages, newborns to teenagers

Please bring your donations to:

________________________

________________________

________________________

and help make it possible for all children to grow up with books and a love of reading.